Team DMV's Developer Notes

"Our notes to the users of The Wheel of Jeopardy Application"

This application was built by Patrick Knowles, Greg Palmer, Matt Blaschak, and Tony Kelly as a requirement for our 605.601.84 – Foundations of Software Engineering course – while we were all students at Johns Hopkins University's Engineering for Professionals program. We called ourselves Team DMV since we are all local to the DC, Maryland, and Virginia area(s).

We started out as (4) strangers, and ended up as (4) friends. We spent a lot of time texting, in group calls, and messing around in Netbeans and Microsoft Word to bring you the best project we could and we sure are proud of it.

This is no Oasis – there are no game chasing Easter Eggs. What you have in front of you is a homegrown, and hand built application by (4) guys who all learned a lot about application development, software engineering, Java, and each other.

We hope you enjoy our application!
